1. _____ Cape Cod (1600s, 1930-1950) Early American settlers developed this northeastern U.S. style, which is known for its gabled roof and plain front.

2. _____ Colonial (1700-1850) This period style features a rectangular, symmetrical design and a simple formality.

3. _____ Greek Revival (1825-1860) Inspired by Greek architecture and democracy, Greek Revival homes feature a symmetrical, formal shape.

4. _____ Victorian (1840-1910) "Victorian" refers to several ornate architectural styles that developed during the Victorian era.

5. _____ Arts and Crafts (1880-1925) The 19th century Arts and Crafts Movement sparked the Craftsman and bungalow styles.

6. _____ Spanish Colonial (1890-1930) This style shows strong Latin influences and fosters a connection to nature.

7. _____ Modern (1905-1965) The broad term "modern" includes several mid-20th-century architectural styles.

8. _____ French Provincial (1915-1945) These symmetrical homes are inspired by French estates from the 1600s.

9. _____ Ranch (1930-1980) Single-story, open ranch homes are modeled after the casual style of true Western homes.

10. _____ Farmhouse (1720-1910) The term "farmhouse" usually refers to homes on rural land that were built by homeowners rather than architects.

11. _____ Federal (1780-1830, 1880-1920) This grand style, inspired by

Roman classicism, was America's first "national style."

12. _____ Italianate (1840-1910) Symmetrical front bay windows and tall chimneys characterize this style.

13. _____ Neoclassical (1885-1925) Recalling the architecture of ancient Greece and Rome, Neoclassical homes are formal and timeless.

14. _____ Tudor Revival (1890-1950) Half-timbered exteriors, steep roofs and gables mark the Tudor Revival style.

15. _____ Prairie (1900-1920) Boxy, low-slung prairie architecture was originated by Frank Lloyd Wright in the Midwest.

16. _____ Pueblo Revival (1912-present) The flat roofs and earth-toned walls of the Pueblo style were inspired by the simple structures of the Pueblo Indians.
